

Joy Hilton: Education Program Director

Joy Hilton, MAgrSc, is an experienced biologist with a background in education and communications. Joy earned her BA degree in Communications and Theatre Arts from the University of Minnesota. After a career in advertising and management she went on to complete her Masters Degree in Agricultural Biology and Horticulture, focusing on plant pathology and food systems, at the University of Minnesota, St. Paul. Joy has over twenty-five years of experience in communications and sixteen years of experience in agriculture, government, food system equality, and environmental science. She has spent the last ten years teaching environmental and garden science to local elementary school children.